Naval Officers Spend Valentine's Day Visiting Overton High School

(MEMPHIS, Tn.) – The students of Overton High School were met by a number of sailors during their career day on February 14th, 2013.

The Overton High School career day is designed to provide students an opportunity to speak to members in the community about their chosen careers and hear about day to day work experiences. While students were very excited to speak to the sailors present, even Navy participants found the event very enriching. “I want to mention that after speaking with [CAPT Lavencion Starks] and witnessing the work Mike [Hollister], Dewon [Chaney] and others are accomplishing with NNOA, I've been inspired to renew my dedication to the cause,” said LCDR Meger Chappell, a participant of the day's events.

The Memphis NNOA chapter often partners with local high schools to provide mentorship to students. LCDR Dewon Chaney, LCDR Meger Chappell and LS2 James McCullough attended on behalf of NSA Mid-South and Navy Recruiting Command.
